Re: Three Months and Twelve Months Ended December 31, 2008, Unaudited Financial Statements

Overview of Preliminary Fourth-Quarter 2008 Financial Results

CBOE ended another outstanding year with solid fourth quarter results, reporting a 12-percent increase in revenues to $104.0 million and a 5-percent rise in pretax earnings to $38.2 million, compared with the prior-year period. Since initiating its for-profit approach in January 2006, CBOE has reported twelve consecutive quarters of double-digit comparable growth in revenues and higher pretax earnings.

(in thousands)	4Q2008	4Q2007	chg	% chg
Revenues	$ 104,019	$ 93,048	$ 10,971	12%
Expenses	$ 65,820	$ 56,771	$ 9,049	16%
Income Before Taxes	$ 38,199	$ 36,277	$ 1,922	5%
Operating Margin	36.7%	39.0%	-2.3%pts
Net Income	$ 22,118	$ 22,585	$ -467	-2%
Average Contracts Traded Per Day	4,590	4,039	551	14%

Revenues for the quarter grew 12 percent, reflecting higher transaction fees offset somewhat by declines in regulatory fees and investment income. Transaction fees for the quarter rose 18 percent to $85.3 million compared with the prior-year period, driven by a 14-percent increase in trading volume and a 4-percent increase in the average transaction fee per contract. Total contracts traded during the quarter were 293.8 million compared with 258.5 million contracts in the same period last year. CBOE's average daily volume was 4.6 million contracts for the fourth quarter, a 14-percent increase against last year's average of 4.0 million contracts. The average transaction fee per contract rose to $0.290 for the quarter from $0.279 in fourth-quarter 2007, primarily due to an increased proportion of trading in CBOE's proprietary products.

Transaction fees accounted for 82 percent of CBOE's fourth-quarter revenues compared with 77 percent a year ago, reflecting stronger growth versus the other revenue categories. Regulatory fees declined $2.1 million, or 56 percent, compared with last year's fourth quarter largely due to a decline in registered representative renewal fees, which resulted from a change in CBOE's regulatory fee structure. Interest income was down by $1.2 million for the quarter compared with the prior-year period as the yield on investments declined as a result of reduced interest rates.

Fourth Quarter Expense Analysis - Leverage Impacted by C2 Development

Fourth-quarter expenses were $65.8 million, a 16-percent increase compared with the prior year's final quarter. The $9.0-million expense increase for the quarter primarily resulted from higher charges related to employment costs, data processing, outside services, royalty fees and other expenses. Employee costs were up $2.5 million for the quarter driven by the accrual adjustment for year-end incentive awards, higher employee compensation and increased severance expense. Annual incentive awards are directly aligned with CBOE's financial performance. Higher employee compensation relates to staffing for C2 and merit increases compared with last year's fourth quarter. Data processing expenses were up $1.1 million due to incremental expenses incurred for C2. The cost of outside services was up $2.2 million compared with last year's fourth quarter, reflecting an increase in systems consulting fees, largely related to C2 systems development. Other expenses increased by $1.0 million primarily due to higher costs for DPM market linkage and a new liquidity provider program. The DPM market linkage program reimburses DPMs for the cost of linking customer orders to markets at other exchanges. The new liquidity provider rebate program provides incentives to market participants for executing orders at CBOE as opposed to routing to away markets. The $2.3-million increase in royalty fees was directly related to higher trading volume in licensed products.

CBOE's operating margin, representing income before taxes as a percentage of total revenues, was 36.7 percent for the quarter, a 2.3-percentage-point decline from last year's 39.0 percent. The margin decrease primarily resulted from incremental expenses incurred during the quarter for the development of C2, CBOE's alternative exchange initiative that is not expected to launch until later in 2009.

Net income for the quarter of $22.1 million was down 2 percent compared with last year's fourth quarter, resulting from a higher effective tax rate of 42.1 percent in 2008 versus 37.7 percent in 2007.

Overview of Preliminary Full-Year 2008 Financial Results

CBOE delivered another record year, posting a 38-percent increase in pretax earnings on a 20-percent increase in revenues, compared with the full-year 2007.

(in thousands)	Year 2008	Year 2007	chg	% chg
Revenues	$ 423,781	$ 352,300	$ 71,481	20%
Expenses	$ 230,374	$ 212,349	$ 18,025	8%
Income Before Taxes	$ 193,407	$ 139,951	$ 53,456	38%
Operating Margin	45.6%	39.7%	5.9%pts
Net Income	$ 114,815	$ 83,168	$ 31,647	38%
Average Contracts Traded Per Day	4,717	3,763	954	25%

Total revenues were $423.8 million for the twelve months ended December 31, 2008, a $71.5-million increase from the same period last year. As seen in the quarterly results, strong trading volume drove transactions fees up 26 percent to $342.5 million, compared with the previous year. Total trading volume for the year exceeded one billion contracts for the first time in the Exchange's history as 1.2 billion contracts traded,

Edgar Filing: CBOE Holdings, Inc. - Form 425

representing a 26-percent increase from the prior year. CBOE traded an average of 4.7 million contracts daily for the 2008 fiscal year, 25 percent above the daily average of 3.8 million contracts in 2007. The average transaction fee per contract of $0.287 for the year was unchanged from last year's average.

For the full-year 2008, CBOE's operating margin was 45.6 percent, an increase of 5.9 percentage points compared with 39.7 percent in the same period last year. The favorable margin performance once again demonstrates CBOE's ability to leverage the economies of scale inherent in its operating model and its commitment to prudently manage expenses while strategically investing in organic growth opportunities.

Net income for the twelve months ended December 31, 2008, increased 38 percent to $114.8 million compared with the prior year.

Consolidated Balance Sheets

CBOE ended the year with $281.4 million of cash and investments (excluding restricted funds) on hand and a debt-free balance sheet. Working capital, defined as current assets minus current liabilities, increased by $14.8 million for the quarter and $96.1 million for the full-year to $270.0 million at December 31, 2008. These increases resulted from revenues outpacing expenses less capital spending.

Cash Flow

Operating cash flow was $32.3 million for the quarter and $170.0 million for the year, versus $35.1 million and $115.2 million for fourth-quarter and full-year 2007, respectively. Capital expenditures totaled $15.5 million in the fourth quarter versus $6.0 million in fourth quarter of 2007. Higher capital spending was driven by the development of initial systems requirements for C2 for the quarter and the year. While C2 is expected to launch later in 2009, the majority of the estimated $25-million capital outlay occurred in 2008. Capital expenditures for the full-year 2008 were $49.7 million compared with $32.1 million the prior year. Looking ahead to 2009, CBOE expects capital spending to approximate $35 to $40 million as it plans to make prudent investments in growth opportunities while continuing to enhance its systems capacity and functionality.

Free cash flow, another measure of liquidity, defined as net cash provided by operating activities less capital expenditures, was $120.3 million for the 2008 fiscal year, a strong increase against $83.1 million for the comparable prior-year period.

CBOE's balance sheet remains strong and it is well positioned to meet its funding needs through cash flows from operations. Additionally, CBOE recently secured a revolving line of credit, giving it greater flexibility in accessing available sources of funds following final resolution of the Exercise Right Litigation.
