2 Review of Operations

1. Outline of Business

(1) Business Results

Komatsu achieved consolidated net sales of ¥1,089.8 billion in the year under review, representing an increase of 5.2% from the previous fiscal year. Operating income totaled ¥33.1 billion compared with an operating loss of ¥13.2 billion in the previous year, and net income was ¥3.0 billion compared with a net loss of ¥80.6 billion in the previous year.

The following is a review of each business segment.

[1] Construction and Mining Equipment

In the construction and mining equipment segment, sales totaled ¥774.4 billion, up 4.9% from the previous year, and operating profit of this segment was ¥28.9 billion, representing an increase of 3,190.5%.

The degree of the decline in demand within Japan tended to diminish during the second half, but the overall decline during the full term was nearly 15%.

The Company endeavored to secure sales by introducing its GALEO-series models, centered on its mainstay hydraulic excavators, while in its rental business it devoted considerable effort to the rental of comprehensive equipment and facilities for civil engineering works by Group rental companies. In the field of selling used equipment, overseas demand was buoyant, particularly in other Asian countries, and this was catered to by an active program of auctions of used equipment, primarily by Komatsu Used Equipment Corp. The Company addressed structural change in the Japanese market by revising its sales structure, including by broadening the areas covered by distributors. However, these steps were not sufficient to compensate for the fall in demand, and sales registered a decline.

In North America, demand for construction equipment declined for the fourth consecutive year, causing sales to fall below their previous year level. Steps were taken there to build an efficient operating structure by eliminating and amalgamating local subsidiaries, and product development and product support capabilities were enhanced through the establishment of the North American Development Center and a training center. Komatsu also made progress with the strengthening of its distributors and the introduction of the GALEO series into the market, while in the utility (compact) equipment field it placed emphasis on marketing backhoe loaders produced in the U.S. and skid steer loaders designed for the North American market. In the mining equipment business Komatsu's activities included vigorous marketing of large bulldozers and other equipment in order to expand market share and to increase its Repair & Maintenance contracts. Nevertheless, sales of mining equipment declined from the previous year under the strong impact of the decline in demand for off-highway dump trucks.

In Europe there was a steep fall in demand in Germany, the largest European market, and in France, and thus in spite of continuing robust demand in other countries, overall European demand registered negative growth, as was the case in the previous year. Against this backdrop,

Edgar Filing: KOMATSU LTD - Form 6-K

Komatsu conducted vigorous programs of sales and service activities that focused on new models of hydraulic excavators and wheel loaders, and skid steer loaders and other equipment developed in Europe. As a result, the Company steadily increased market share in spite of the shrinking demand, and achieved sales growth.

In China, where demand increased substantially during the year, Komatsu achieved a strong rise in sales, particularly of hydraulic excavators produced by Komatsu Shantui Construction Machinery Co., Ltd. The Komatsu Group's holding in this Chinese company was raised to 60% in August 2002, changing its status to that of a consolidated subsidiary, and in 2003 it embarked upon the production and sale of the PC200 hydraulic excavator, a new model in the GALEO series. The Company also took steps to enhance its capability for local procurement of parts and the further reduction of manufacturing costs. It did so by establishing two joint-venture parts manufacturers through joint investment with a Chinese partner and a Japanese supplier, one for cabs and the other for large metal parts. Meanwhile Komatsu (China) Ltd., our regional headquarters, gave priority to strengthening the capabilities of its distributors in the spheres of sales and after-sales service.

In Southeast Asia, demand remained stable in Indonesia, the largest market of the region, and expanded substantially in Thailand. In this environment Komatsu recorded robust sales of equipment in its GALEO series, achieving a particularly large increase in the market share of its hydraulic excavators. Komatsu has already built an effective manufacturing structure and excellent collaborative relationships with powerful distributors in this region, and as a result was able to record sales growth well in excess of the pace of growth in demand.

Demand grew strongly in Oceania and the Middle East, which Komatsu supplies primarily through exports from Japan, but demand in Africa declined from the previous year. In these regions there is demand for an extensive range of products, such as hydraulic excavators, bulldozers, wheel loaders and dump trucks, and therefore the Company was able to capitalize on its advantage of being a full-line manufacturer, enabling it to achieve strong sales growth in each of these regions.

Total production in the construction and mining equipment segment increased 1.7% from the previous year, to approximately ¥743.3 billion on a consolidated basis, in terms of selling prices.

[2] Electronics

Consolidated sales in the electronics segment totaled ¥85.3 billion, up 10.8% over the previous year, and the operating loss of this segment shrank to ¥0.8 billion, down from ¥14.9 billion in the previous year. On a non-consolidated basis, sales declined from the previous year, principally as a result of falls in sales of communications equipment and control and information equipment.

The market for silicon wafers moved back onto a recovery track in the first half of the year under review, but fell after peaking in the summer of 2002, and subsequently remained stalled. Given this situation, Komatsu Electronic Metals Co., Ltd. took measures to secure earnings and to reinforce its corporate strengths. These were aimed at enhancing the competitiveness of its products, primarily of its mainstay 200 mm wafers, and improving the efficiency of its production of discrete wafers, and were combined with sales and service operations fine-tuned to specific customer needs. These enabled the Company to achieve earnings growth.

Formosa Komatsu Silicon Corporation, a joint venture with a local partner in Taiwan, expanded its sales channels in Taiwan and other parts of Asia, increased its ratio of prime wafers, and high-value-added annealed wafers to its product range. These, combined with efforts focused on securing earnings, enabled Formosa Komatsu Silicon to move into profit in the second half of the year under review. In consequence, the consolidated results of Komatsu Electronic Metals underwent a considerable improvement, making a major contribution to the improvement of the earnings of the Electronics segment. In response to the ongoing growth of the market for 300 mm wafers, Komatsu Electronic Metals has continued to develop technologies for improving quality and for mass production, and it is undertaking capital investment within the scope of its cash flow for the purpose of boosting its current monthly production capacity of 10,000 units to approximately 45,000 units by fiscal 2006.

In the United States, Advanced Silicon Materials LLC (ASiMI) reduced production capacity by consolidating its plants at the end of the previous fiscal year, and sales for the year declined from the previous year. ASiMI has specialized in high-margin products and has benefited from reduced fixed costs resulting from the consolidation of its plants, and although it posted a loss, this nevertheless represented a substantial improvement from the bottom reached in the previous year.

Komatsu Electronics, Inc. devoted particular attention to expanding sales of temperature control equipment for semiconductor manufacturing. Conditions remained difficult, however, owing to the persistent absence of a recovery by the North American market for fiber-optic telecommunications, and slack sales of thermoelectric modules.

Total production in the electronics segment increased 13.2% from the previous year, to approximately ¥73.8 billion on a consolidated basis, in terms of selling prices.

[3] Others

Consolidated sales in other segments totaled ¥274.5 billion, up 3.6% over the previous year, and operating income of this segment totaled ¥8.8 billion, up 77.6%.

On a non-consolidated basis, sales of large presses declined from the previous year, reflecting increasingly intense global competition among Japanese and foreign press builders. Meanwhile sales to Japan's Defense Agency accelerated in the second half and expanded for the year.

Komatsu Forklift Co., Ltd. engaged in vigorous sales activity for new models of its mainstay engine-driven forklift trucks in the LEO-NXT series, and also for battery-driven forklift trucks and Linde-made models. In Japan, where demand remained slack throughout the year, the Company secured sales at about the same level as in the previous year. Komatsu increased sales overseas, particularly to China and Southeast Asia, and the earnings of its subsidiary in the United States improved significantly. Bolstered by the additional impact of reductions in fixed costs, the Company achieved increases in both sales and profits.

Komatsu Industries Corporation achieved a large increase in sales of presses amid sluggish demand in the Japanese market, in particular through sales of such models as the newly introduced compact H1F Hybrid AC Servo Press Series. Export sales of presses also increased firmly, especially to China and Southeast Asia. Amid the harsh market environment for sheet metal machinery, the company concentrated management resources on the development and sale of strategic products such as Gatling press centers and twister fine plasma cutting machines. As a result, Komatsu Industries recorded its third consecutive year of growth in both sales and profits.

In its agricultural and forestry equipment business, Komatsu Zenoah Co. experienced a decline in demand within Japan. Nevertheless, it achieved brisk sales of brushcutters and chainsaws equipped with EZ Start capabilities, which improve ignition significantly, and also rapid growth in sales of innovative new knapsack-type brush-cutters. Overseas, the company increased sales during the year, as in spite of a decline in demand in North America, demand in Europe, China and Southeast Asia was firm. With respect to its two-stroke engines, which are competitive in terms of environmental friendliness, Komatsu Zenoah endeavored to expand business in North America, its biggest market. As a result of these efforts, the company achieved record-high sales in its agricultural and forestry equipment business.

The following is a review of consolidated segment results by region.

[1] Japan

Sales in Japan totaled ¥719.8 billion, up 4.3% from the previous year, and operating income of this region was ¥25.7 billion, up 19,706.1%. In the construction and mining equipment segment, both sales and profits were over the previous year, fueled by growth in demand in regions supplied mainly by exports from Japan. The electronics segment benefited from the recovery in demand for silicon wafers in the first half of the year under review, and both sales and profits showed growth. In other businesses, sales of large presses declined, but there was an overall increase in both sales and profits, bolstered by substantial growth in overseas sales of Komatsu Zenoah's hydraulic equipment.

[2] The Americas

Sales in the Americas totaled ¥268.0 billion, down 5.7% from the previous year, and the operating loss of this region was ¥1.9 billion, compared with an operating loss of ¥10.5 billion in the previous year. In the construction and mining equipment segment, sales and profits were both impacted strongly by the fall in demand for mining equipment. In the electronics segment there was a substantial improvement in earnings as a result of the specialization by Advanced Silicon Materials in high-value-added products and the reduction of fixed costs through the consolidation of its plants. However, this was insufficient to move this segment into profit. The net result of these developments was that overall operations in the Americas registered an operating loss, as was the case in the previous year.

[3] Europe

Sales in Europe totaled ¥142.4 billion, up 20.8% from the previous year, while operating income of this region was ¥2.7 billion, representing a fall of 9.2%. In the construction and mining equipment segment, in the face of a decline in market demand, the Company continued its efforts to increase earnings and market share through the introduction of new products. In consequence, sales registered increase, but profits suffered a decline.

[4] Other regions

In other regions the Company achieved ¥149.6 billion consolidated sales, up 45.4% from the previous year, and ¥8.9 billion operating income of this region, compared with a previous year ¥0.3 billion operating loss of this region. In the construction and mining equipment segment, demand in China continued to rise at a faster-than-expected pace, accompanied by growth in demand in Southeast Asia, Oceania, and the Middle East. As a result, sales and profits were well up on the previous year. On the other hand in the electronics segment Formosa Komatsu Silicon Corporation moved into profit in the second half, but posted a modest loss for the year as a whole.

(2) Cash Flow

During the year under review, consolidated cash and cash equivalents increased by ¥30.7 billion from the end of the previous fiscal year, to ¥76.1 billion, including an increase of ¥5.3 billion resulting from a change in the scope of consolidation of consolidated subsidiaries.

Net cash provided by operating activities totaled ¥48.2 billion as the recovery in business performance offset payments of early-retirement benefit as part of the Reform of Business Structure project during the previous fiscal year. Net cash used in investing activities totaled ¥36.0 billion, down by ¥19.1 billion from the previous year, as the result of factors such as investments in production and sales facilities and purchases of leased assets. Net cash provided by financing activities increased ¥59.3 billion, to ¥18.8 billion, mainly reflecting the issuance of ¥30 billion of straight bonds to provide against the instability in the financial environment.

2. Status of Production, Orders, and Sales

The products manufactured and sold by the Komatsu Group cover an extensive range and are of numerous types and models, and the same product type may not necessarily be uniform in terms of factors such as capacity, structure, and configuration. Furthermore there are many products that are not of the type for which orders can be placed and the product manufactured on that basis. Accordingly, the scale of production and scale of orders are not indicated in terms of their value and quantity broken down by business segment. In view of this, the status of production, orders, and sales is shown in relation to the results in each individual business segment in 1. Outline of Business above.

3. Issues to be Addressed

Komatsu has set out the following four medium-term business strategies, and in line with these it is implementing a variety of measures directed at enhancing its growth and its corporate strengths.

- 1) New growth strategy for the construction and mining equipment business,
- 2) Reduction of environmental stress and expansion of environmental business,
- 3) Focused attention to business in which Komatsu can maintain a technological edge on a global scale, and
- 4) Attainment of competitive advantage by deploying IT or e-Komatsu.

Economic activity increased in China and other parts of Asia during the year under review, but the operating environment was very harsh in other major markets. In Japan, for example, the pace of public investment was sluggish and share prices plunged, and economic recovery was delayed in Europe and the United States. Komatsu countered this situation by taking steps to restore profitability and revive its business performance. To achieve that it has been pursuing its Reform of Business Structure project, the cornerstones of which are a new growth strategy for its mainstay construction and mining equipment business, cuts in fixed costs, and substantial reductions of production costs. These efforts are now steadily achieving results.

Table of Contents

To ensure that these results are placed on a firm footing, and to realize a V-shaped recovery in business performance, Komatsu will be addressing the following five issues.

- [1] To accelerate the implementation of the new growth strategy for the construction and mining equipment business

The Japanese market for construction equipment is undergoing structural change, but the U.S. and European markets are generally cyclical, and are stable over the medium to long term. Given the additional demand from infrastructure development in such areas as China, other parts of Asia, and the Middle East, the construction and mining equipment business can be expected to sustain overall growth.

Given these circumstances, based on its global sales and service networks, Komatsu and regional headquarters will play a central role in reinforcing the competitiveness of each local base, and will also devote their efforts to expanding parts business and entering new markets and fields with growth potential, such as Working Gear (e.g. special application equipment and attachments), the environment, and components.

In Japan, in addition to launching new products the Company will devote attention to expanding business in downstream fields that follow the sale of new equipment, such as rentals, used equipment, and parts and service. Komatsu is determined to develop a business model for the unified circulation of construction equipment in the form of new, rental and used equipment as soon as possible, and make this the pacesetter for construction and mining equipment business globally.

- [2] To reinforce its competitiveness based on the Spirit of Manufacturers commitment

It is important for Komatsu to continue its reforms based on its Spirit of Manufacturers commitment, in order to enhance its competitiveness as a manufacturer. Komatsu will continue to focus its efforts on achieving the highest level of cost competitiveness in each region, and on developing products with unique and unrivaled features that totally outclass competitors. In Japan the Company manufactures competitive products thanks to factors such as skills and technologies accumulated over many years, collaboration with other suppliers, and improvements resulting from creative ideas put forward by employees. By transferring these technologies and know-how to overseas manufacturing subsidiaries and supporting them, the Company is enhancing its competitiveness overseas.

Product development and model renewal offer ideal opportunities for Komatsu to reduce costs substantially. It is dedicated to achieving impressive results through the unified teamwork of employees in all areas: development, design, procurement, production, sales and service.

- [3] To facilitate the selective focus undertaking

In light of limitations on management resources, it is not easy for a single company to persistently generate stable profits in a large number of different fields of business in the face of global competition. In every operating division and affiliated company the Komatsu Group will pursue a policy of selection and concentration, by evaluating whether it is able to differentiate its products through technological advantage and whether it is generating sufficient return on investment, and based on this, by studying the optimum methods for developing the relevant businesses.

- [4] To reinforce the foundation for competitiveness

The basics of competitiveness are technological capabilities, a strong financial structure, and readiness among our employees to take on any challenge.

To push ahead with its reforms based on the Spirit of Manufacturers, it is essential for Komatsu to enhance its technological capabilities constantly, and thus it will continue to invest in the development not only of contemporary technologies, but also of leading-edge technologies for the future. As for strengthening its financial structure, the Company will persist with the efforts it has been making hitherto to build a lean but strong financial structure, so as to make it possible to conduct sound management. In addition, in an age of abrupt change the Company will create an organization that is flexible and agile, and in which every employee possesses the will to take on any challenge.

[5] To further improve corporate governance

Komatsu has for some time endeavored to ensure the neutrality and soundness of management by forming a Board of Auditors with two external and two internal auditors as members. In 1999 the Company reduced the number of directors on its Board of Directors, creating a structure under which board members have been able to discuss key management issues more thoroughly for quicker decision-making. At the same time, a director from outside the Komatsu Group was invited to join the board to ensure transparency and objectivity of management. In the same year, the Company also established its independent Compensation Committee, which is staffed mainly by people from outside the Komatsu Group. In addition, the Company endeavors to ensure that all employees of the Komatsu Group observe not only laws and regulations, but also Komatsu's Code of Worldwide Business Conduct, which was laid down with global application in 1998.

Komatsu has been devoting further efforts to establish corporate ethics and assure soundness of management, in addition to improving management efficiency. Its aim has been to maximize the corporate value of the Komatsu Group, and to become a company that enjoys even greater confidence among shareholders and all other stakeholders.

5. Research and Development

The Komatsu Group, comprising Komatsu Ltd. and its consolidated subsidiaries, pursues a policy of vigorous research and development into new technologies and new products encompassing a wide range of fields including construction and mining equipment, electronics, industrial machinery, and environmental equipment. These R&D activities are based on the Group's commitment to quality and reliability.

The Group's research and development organizational structure consists of the head-office Technology Research Center; separate development centers for construction & mining machinery, centered on the Development Division; technology departments under the parent company's Electronics and Industrial Machinery Divisions; and the technology departments of Group companies. Total R&D expenses on a consolidated basis, recorded under cost of sales or selling, general and administrative expenses, came to ¥39,027 million for the reporting term. The objectives, results, and costs of R&D by operating segment are described below.

(1) Construction and Mining Equipment Segment

Komatsu has set up R&D centers in Japan and overseas with the objective of developing construction and mining equipment capable of adapting to climatic and terrain conditions anywhere in the world. Joint research programs are conducted by these R&D centers, and the exchange of personnel is actively carried out. Under the overriding mission of helping to raise our customers' productivity, research and development is being conducted into the following medium-to-long-term themes.

Information technology

Research is being conducted into such aspects of information technology as machine positioning and working status utilizing state-of-the-art sensors and telecommunications technologies; remote-control technologies for machine diagnosis; and artificial intelligence.

Environmental preservation technology

In addition to meeting the Tier II emission control regulations for diesel engines, the Komatsu Group aims to contribute to the reduction of environmental load and the effective utilization of natural resources while at the same time realizing cost-efficiency. To this end, we conduct R&D into energy conservation, component recycling and reuse, and the evaluation of environmental load through lifecycle assessment (LCA) techniques. In addition, from the perception that environmental considerations should apply not only to the ecology but also to people's living and working environment, we also focus considerable effort on research into methods of developing safer machines, reducing noise and vibration, and other means of improving working conditions for machine operators.

Research and development expenses in this business segment for the reporting period amounted to ¥23,602 million. The principal products that benefited from R&D during the reporting term are listed below.

(2) Electronics Segment

Research and development is conducted into materials and equipment for use mainly in the semiconductor and telecommunications fields.

In the semiconductor field, to respond to the growing demand from device makers for higher-grade silicon wafers that can enable greater density, capacity, and miniaturization in semiconductors, we conducted research into: high-purity silicon monocrystals, heat treatment and high-quality epitaxial wafers as well as wafer evaluation techniques; and R&D into next-generation wafers including 300 mm (12-inch) wafers. Through such research, we sought to produce monocrystal silicon wafers with a lower defect rate, high-quality epitaxial annealed wafers, and super-flat, high-purity wafers. This R&D was conducted principally by Komatsu Electronic Metals Co., Ltd. Meanwhile, research was also conducted in the field of semiconductor manufacture, such as temperature control equipment including high-temperature chemical circulators, low-temperature equipment for etchers, and the essential components of high-performance thermoelectric module heat-exchange units. This R&D was carried out by Komatsu Electronics, Inc.

In the telecommunications field, Komatsu Electronics conducted research into super-small thermo-modules for use in optical communications. The parent company conducted research on network devices, information terminals (including data transmission terminals mounted in vehicles) as well as vehicle positioning systems. Research and development expenses in this business segment totaled ¥5,766 million.

(3) Other Business Segments

Research and development is conducted in the field of large presses and sheet-metal forging machines, principally by Komatsu Industries Corporation; into machine tools by Komatsu Machinery Corporation; into industrial vehicles by Komatsu Forklift Co., Ltd.; and into agricultural and forestry equipment by Komatsu Zenoah Co.

In industrial machinery, to respond to growing user needs for higher productivity and flexibility in large presses and sheet-metal forging equipment, research and development was focused on functional enhancement and the automation of peripheral equipment. Such equipment included large transfer presses with new mechanisms for slide motion, large AC servo-presses, and small AC servo-presses (HIF Series), as well as an additional type of crankshaft miller (GPM190F) in the GPM series.

Regarding industrial vehicles, new forklift models were developed including in the LEO-NXT Series of engine-powered forklifts, the AR Series of battery-powered forklifts, and the ARION Plus Series of battery-powered forklifts.

In the field of agricultural and forestry equipment, we developed easy-to-operate products such as the BK2650 backpack-type rotary grass cutter; easy-start chainsaws (G2500EZ, G3500EZ, G3700EZ, and G4200EZ); and scale-model engines for hobby use (G231/260PU/PUM). Overall research and development expenses in this business segment totaled ¥9,659 million, which includes expenses for basic research that cannot be allocated to individual business segments.

5. Notes to Consolidated Financial Statements

Komatsu Ltd. and Consolidated Subsidiaries

1. Description of Business, Basis of Financial Statements and Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Description of Business

Komatsu Ltd. (the Company) and consolidated subsidiaries (together the companies) primarily manufacture and market various types of construction and mining equipment throughout the world. They also engage in manufacturing and sales of electronics including semiconductor products, and other activities including manufacturing and sales of industrial machinery and industrial vehicles.

The consolidated net sales of the Company and consolidated subsidiaries for the year ended March 31, 2003, consisted of the following:

Construction and mining equipment 70.5%, Electronics 7.8%, Others 21.7%.

Sales are made principally under the Komatsu brand name, and are almost entirely through sales subsidiaries and sales distributors. These subsidiaries and distributors are responsible for marketing and distribution and primarily sell to retail dealers in their geographical area.

Of consolidated net sales for the year ended March 31, 2003, 58.0% were generated outside Japan, with 23.1% in the Americas, 13.3% in Europe, 16.2% in Asia (excluding Japan) and Oceania, and 5.4% in the Middle East and Africa.

The manufacturing operations of the Company and consolidated subsidiaries are conducted primarily at plants in Japan, United States, Germany, United Kingdom, Brazil, Italy, China and Taiwan.

Basis of Financial Statements

- 1) The accompanying consolidated financial statements are stated in conformity with the accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (US GAAP). Certain reclassifications have been made to prior year amounts to conform with current year presentation.

Edgar Filing: KOMATSU LTD - Form 6-K

- 2) The accompanying consolidated financial statements reflect certain adjustments not recorded in books of the Company and its subsidiaries, to present them in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. They were mainly attributable to the difference between the US and Japan's accounting standards.

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(1) Consolidation and Investments in Affiliated Companies

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and all of its majority-owned domestic and foreign subsidiaries, except for certain immaterial subsidiaries.

During fiscal 2002, Komatsu Cummins Chile Ltda., which was previously accounted for using the equity method, became a consolidated subsidiary. The Company established Komatsu (China) Ltd. and one other company, both of which are treated as consolidated subsidiaries. In addition, KEM America Inc. was excluded from consolidated subsidiaries due to its liquidation in this period.

At the beginning of fiscal 2002, the Company changed the consolidated closing date for certain overseas subsidiaries from December 31 to March 31. As a result, unappropriated retained earnings decreased by ¥3,705 million, and other comprehensive income (loss) increased by ¥9,447 million.

Investments in 20% to 50%-owned affiliated companies whereby the Company has the ability to exercise significant influence over the operational and financial policies of a company, and certain immaterial subsidiaries not consolidated are, with minor exceptions, accounted for by the equity method.

(2) Translation of Foreign Currency Accounts

Under the provisions of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 52, Foreign Currency Transaction, assets and liabilities are translated at the exchange rates in effect at each fiscal year-end, and income and expenses are translated at the average rates of exchange prevailing during each fiscal year in consolidating the financial statements of overseas subsidiaries. The resulting translation adjustments are included as a separate component of accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) in the accompanying consolidated financial statements. All foreign currency transaction gains and losses are included in other income or expenses in the period incurred.

(3) Allowance for Doubtful Trade Receivables

The Company records an allowance for doubtful receivables that is based upon historical experience and specific customer collection issues.

(4) Inventories

Edgar Filing: KOMATSU LTD - Form 6-K

Inventories, consisting of finished products including finished parts held for sale, work in process, and materials and supplies, are stated at the lower of cost or market. Cost is determined by the last-in, first-out method for finished parts held for sale and by using actual costs accumulated under a job-order-cost system for other finished products and work in process. Cost of materials and supplies represents average cost.

(5) Investment Securities

In compliance with SFAS No. 115, Accounting for Certain Investments in Debt and Equity Securities, as of March 31, 2003 and 2002, all of the Company's investments in debt and equity securities are categorized as available-for-sale securities which are stated at fair value. Changes in fair values are included as a separate component of accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) in the accompanying consolidated financial statements.

Unrealized losses are charged against net earnings when a decline in market value below cost is determined to be other than temporary based primarily on the financial condition of the issue and the extent and length of the time of the decline.

Investments whose market values have declined below cost that extends for six months are automatically written down to the fair value in all cases.

Table of Contents(6) Land and Buildings Held for Sale

Land and buildings held for sale are stated at the lower of cost or market value less cost to sell. During fiscal 2003, the Company recorded a total charge of ¥ 6,348 in other expense to reduce the carrying values of assets held for sale to current estimated market values less cost to sell.

(7) Property, Plant and Equipment, and Related Depreciation

Property, plant and equipment are stated at cost. Depreciation is computed principally using the declining-balance method at rates based on the estimated useful lives of the assets. The average depreciation periods are 25 years for buildings and 9 years for machinery and equipment, respectively. Effective rates of depreciation for buildings, machinery and equipment for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002, are as follows:

	2003	2002
Buildings	9%	9%
Machinery and equipment	23%	23%

Certain leased machinery and equipment are accounted for as capital leases in conformity with SFAS No. 13, Accounting for Leases. The aggregate cost included in property, plant and equipment and related accumulated depreciation as of March 31, 2003 and 2002 are as follows:

	Millions of yen
	2003	2002
Aggregate cost	¥ 56,683	¥ 26,509
Accumulated depreciation	20,574	10,048

Ordinary maintenance and repairs are charged to expense as incurred. Major replacements and improvements are capitalized. When properties are retired or otherwise disposed of, the property and related accumulated depreciation accounts are relieved of the applicable amounts and any differences are included in other income or expenses.

(8) Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets

In June 2001, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued SFAS No.141, Business Combinations, and SFAS No.142, Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets. SFAS No. 141 requires the use of only the purchase method of accounting for business combinations and refines

the definition of intangible assets acquired in a purchase business combination. SFAS No. 142 eliminates the amortization of goodwill and instead requires annual impairment testing thereof. SFAS No. 142 also requires recognized intangible assets with a definite useful life to be amortized over their respective estimated useful lives and reviewed for impairment in accordance with SFAS No. 144. Any recognized intangible asset determined to have an indefinite useful life is not to be amortized, but instead tested for impairment based on its fair value until its life is determined to no longer be indefinite.

The Company fully adopted the provisions of SFAS No. 141 and SFAS No. 142 as of April 1, 2002. Goodwill acquired in business combinations completed before July 1, 2001, was amortized through March 31, 2002. In connection with the transition provision of SFAS No. 142, the Company was required to perform an assessment of whether there was an indication that any existing goodwill was impaired as of April 1, 2002. To accomplish this, the Company (1) identified its reporting units, (2) determined the carrying value of each reporting unit by assigning the assets and liabilities, including the existing goodwill and intangible assets, to those reporting units, and (3) determined the fair value of each reporting unit. The Company completed the transitional assessment and recognized an impairment loss amounting to ¥265 million as of April 1, 2002 since the carrying amount of the applicable reporting unit's goodwill exceeded its implied fair value. As specified by SFAS No. 142, such transitional impairment loss was reflected as a cumulative effect adjustment in the consolidated statement of income. The Company also completed the annual assessments for the year ended March 31, 2003 and determined that no additional goodwill impairment charge was necessary.

Prior to the adoption of SFAS No. 142, the excess cost of investment in the consolidated subsidiaries and affiliated companies over the equity in the fair value of the net assets at the date of acquisition was amortized on the straight-line method over the estimated periods benefited, not exceeding periods of 10 years.

(9) Revenue Recognition

The companies recognize revenue from product sales at the time when (1) title and risk of all ownership is transferred to independently owned and operated dealers or customers, (2) products are received and accepted by the customers for major products such as construction equipment and electronics products, and upon shipment for parts and certain other products, (3) sales price is fixed or determinable and (4) amounts are reasonably assured of collection.

(10) Income Taxes

In accordance with SFAS No. 109, Accounting for Income Taxes, the deferred tax provision is determined by the asset and liability method. Under this method, deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized based on operating loss carryforwards and temporary differences between financial statement and tax bases of assets and liabilities using enacted tax rates as of each balance-sheet date.

The companies compute and record income taxes currently payable based on their separate determinations of taxable income which may be different from accounting income.

Provision for income taxes is not recorded for undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries because the Company considers that such earnings are permanently reinvested.

Deferred tax assets are reduced by a valuation allowance to the amount that management believes is more likely than not to be realized.

The effect on deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rates is recognized in income in the period that includes the enactment date.

Table of Contents(11) Product Warranties

The Company establishes a liability for estimated product warranty cost after sales. Estimates for accrued product warranty cost are primary based on historical experience.

(12) Pension and Retirement Benefits

The defined benefit plans are accounted for in accordance with SFAS No. 87, Employers' Accounting for Pensions, except for certain subsidiaries' pension plans which in the aggregate are not significant. Certain domestic subsidiaries also have local severance payment plans under which accrued severance liabilities are stated on the vested benefits obligation basis, which is the amount required to be paid if all eligible employees voluntarily terminated their employment as of the balance-sheet date.

Amortization of unrecognized net gain or loss is included as a component of the Company's net periodic pension cost for a year if, as of the beginning of the year, that unrecognized net gain or loss exceed 10 percent of the greater of (1) the projected benefit obligation or (2) the fair value of that plan's assets.

In such case, the amount of amortization recognized by the Company is the resulting excess divided by average remaining service period of active employees expected to receive benefits under the plan. The expected return on plan assets is determined based on the historical long-term rate of return on plan assets. The discount rate is determined based on the rates of return of high-quality fixed income investments currently available and expected to be available during the period to maturity of the pension benefits.

(13) Stock-Based Compensation

The Company applies Accounting Principles Board (APB) Opinion No. 25, Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees as permitted by SFAS No. 123, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation. SFAS No. 123 gives entities a choice of measuring related compensation expense by using the fair value method or the intrinsic value approach under APB Opinion No. 25. Any excess of market price over exercise price at the grant date would be charged to expense over the vesting period.

The following table summarizes the results of the Company if compensation cost for stock options granted and for employee stock purchases under the plan had been determined in accordance with the fair value based method prescribed by SFAS No. 123.

(14) Per Share Data

Basic net income (loss) per share has been computed by dividing net income (loss) by the weighted-average number of common shares outstanding during each fiscal year, after deducting treasury shares. Diluted net income (loss) per share reflects the potential dilution computed on the basis that all convertible bonds were converted at the beginning of the year and that all stock options were exercised (less the number of treasury shares assumed to be purchased from proceeds using the average market price of the Company's common shares) to the extent that each is not antidilutive.

Dividends per share shown in the accompanying consolidated statements of income have been calculated based on dividends approved and paid in each fiscal year.

(15) Consolidated Statements of Cash Flows

For the purpose of the consolidated statements of cash flows, cash and cash equivalents include highly liquid investments with an original maturity of three months or less at the date of purchase.

(16) Derivative Financial Instruments

The companies use various derivative financial instruments to manage their interest rate and foreign exchange exposure.

Effective April 1, 2001, the Company adopted SFAS No. 133, Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities and SFAS No. 138, Accounting for Certain Derivative Instruments and Certain Hedging Activities, an amendment of FASB Statement No. 133. SFAS No. 133 as amended requires that all derivatives, including derivatives embedded in other financial instruments, be measured at fair value and recognized as either assets or liabilities on the consolidated balance sheet. Changes in the fair values of derivative instruments not designated or not qualifying as hedges under SFAS No. 133 or any ineffective portion of qualified hedges are recognized in earnings in the current period. Changes in the fair values of derivative instruments used effectively as fair value hedges are recognized in earnings, along with changes in the fair value of the hedged item. Changes in the fair value of the effective portions of cash flow hedges are reported in other comprehensive income (loss), and recognized in earnings when the hedged item is recognized in earnings.

The cumulative effect adjustment upon the adoption of SFAS No. 133 and 138, net of the related tax effect, resulted in an immaterial impact to net income and a decrease to other comprehensive income (loss) of ¥670 million.

Prior to April 1, 2001, in determining whether these instruments qualify as a hedge, the companies used hedge criteria that include their effectiveness to reduce risk, specific identification of the asset or liability being hedged and the time horizon being hedged.

Interest differentials on interest rate swap contracts were accrued as interest rate change over the contract period. Premiums paid for interest rate caps were amortized over the life of contracts and were expensed as a part of interest expense.

Gains and losses on the foreign exchange contracts were recognized based on changes in exchange gains and losses on such assets and liabilities being hedged. Gains and losses on the forward exchange contracts to hedge foreign currency commitments were deferred and included in the measurement of the related transactions, unless it was estimated that such deferral would lead to recognizing losses in later periods.

In addition, the companies entered into certain interest rate swap contracts as a means of managing the Company and its group companies interest rate exposures that did not meet the hedge criteria. Accordingly, those interest rate swap contracts were recorded in the consolidated balance sheet at their fair value and the changes in fair value were recognized currently in the consolidated statements of income.

(17) Impairment of Long-Lived Assets and Long-Lived Assets to be Disposed of

In accordance with SFAS No. 144 Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets, which develops a single accounting method, based on the framework established in SFAS No. 121, Accounting for the Impairment of Long-Lived Assets and for Long-Lived Assets to Be Disposed Of, the long-lived assets and certain identifiable intangibles to be held and used by the companies are reviewed for impairment based on a cash flow analysis of related operations whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of an asset may not be recoverable. Long-lived assets and certain identifiable intangibles to be disposed of are reported at the lower of carrying amount or fair value less cost to sell. The adoption of SFAS No. 144 as of April 1, 2002, did not have a significant impact on the consolidated financial statements. Prior to April 1, 2002, the Company accounted for impairment in accordance with SFAS No. 121 as follows.

In fiscal 2001, the Company recorded an impairment loss of ¥4,337 million, on long-lived assets related to certain production facilities, which were temporarily idled due to the sluggish market, at its wholly owned subsidiary, Komatsu Silicon America, Inc. which is in the electronics segment. Such impairment loss was calculated using the best estimate of discounted future cash flows based on the intention of the Company to use the facilities in its operation.

However, due to continued negative market conditions in fiscal 2002, management has changed its policy now to sell or dispose of these facilities instead of holding them for future use. In connection therewith, the Company recorded an additional impairment loss of ¥24,983 million for these facilities in fiscal 2002. The impairment loss was calculated based on an estimated fair value less cost to sell of the facilities under current market conditions utilizing independent appraisal of the facilities.

Additionally, in fiscal 2002, the Company, also due to the decline in the market demand, recorded impairment losses of ¥27,259 million on production facilities being operated by a consolidated subsidiary, Advanced Silicon Materials LLC which is also in the electronics segment. Specifically, an impairment loss of ¥13,411 million for its Butte plant in Montana was calculated using the best estimate of discounted future cash flows based on the decision to continue its operation, and one of ¥13,848 million for its Moses Lake plant in Washington was calculated using the estimate of realizable value based on the decision to discontinue its production.

(18) Use of Estimates

The Company's management has made a number of estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets, liabilities, revenues and expenses to prepare these financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Actual results could differ from the estimates and assumptions.

The Company has identified five areas where it believes assumptions and estimates are particularly critical to the financial statements. These are the determination of the allowance for doubtful receivables, impairment on long-lived assets and goodwill, pension liabilities and expenses, fair value of financial instruments and realization of deferred tax assets.

(19) New Accounting Standards

In June 2001, the FASB issued SFAS No. 143, Accounting for Asset Retirement Obligations. This statement addresses financial accounting and reporting for obligations associated with the retirement of tangible long-lived assets and the associated asset retirement costs. The Company will adopt SFAS No. 143 for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 2003, and it is not expected to have a material effect on the Company's consolidated financial position or results of operations.

In July 2002, the FASB issued SFAS No. 146, Accounting for Costs Associated with Exit or Disposal Activities. The Statement requires that a liability for costs associated with exit or disposal activities be recognized in the period in which the costs are incurred if a reasonable estimate of fair value can be made. Under prior accounting guidance, a liability would be recognized when management committed to an exit plan. The requirements under SFAS 146 are effective prospectively for exit or disposal activities initiated after December 31, 2002. Restatement of previously issued financial statements is not permitted. The adoption of this Statement did not have a material effect on the Company's consolidated financial position and results of operations.

In November 2002, the Emerging Issue Task Force (EITF) reached a final consensus on EITF 00-21, Revenue Arrangements with Multiple Deliverables. EITF 00-21 addresses certain aspects of the accounting of revenue arrangements with multiple deliverables by a vendor. The Issue outlines an approach to determine when a revenue arrangement for multiple deliverables should be divided into separate units of accounting and, if separation is appropriate, how the arrangement consideration should be allocated to the identified accounting units. The consensus reached in the Issue will be effective for the Company in its financial statements beginning July 1, 2003. The Company will adopt EITF 00-21 for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 2003. The effect, if any, of adopting this statement has not been determined.

In November 2002, the FASB issued Interpretation No. 45 (FIN 45), Guarantor's Accounting and Disclosure Requirements for Guarantees, Including Indirect Guarantees of Indebtedness to Others, an interpretation of FASB Statements No.s 5, 57 and 107 and a rescission of FASB Interpretation No.34. This Interpretation elaborates on the disclosures to be made by a guarantor in its financial statements about its obligations under guarantees issued. The Interpretation also clarifies that a guarantor is required to recognize, at inception of a guarantee, a liability for the fair value of the obligation undertaken. The initial recognition and measurement provisions of the Interpretation are applicable to guarantees issued or modified after December 31, 2002. The Interpretation has not had a material effect on the Company's consolidated financial position and results of operations.

In January 2003, the FASB issued Interpretation No. 46 (FIN 46), Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities (VIEs), which addresses consolidation by business enterprises of variable interest entities that either: (1) do not have sufficient equity investment at risk to permit the entity to finance its activities without additional subordinated financial support, or (2) the equity investors lack an essential characteristic of a controlling financial interest. The Company does not anticipate the adoption of this Interpretation will have any impact on its financial position or results of operations as it presently does not have investments in such VIEs.

In April 2003, the FASB issued No. 149 (Amendment of Statement 133 on Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities). This Statement amends and clarifies financial accounting and reporting for derivative instruments, including certain derivative instruments embedded in other contracts (collectively referred to as derivatives) and for hedging activities under FASB Statement No. 133, (Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities). This Statement is effective for contracts entered into or modified after June 30, 2003, and for hedging relationships designated after June 30, 2003. All provisions of this Statement will be applied prospectively. The effect of adopting this statement is not expected to be material to the consolidated financial position or results of operations.

Assumptions used in determining costs of the Company's plan and the funded status information shown above are as follows:

	2003	2002
Weighted-average discount rate	2.3%	2.8%
Rate of increase in future compensation levels	2.3%	2.3%
Expected long-term rate of return on plan assets	0.7%	1.9%

As a result of the changes in the discount rate in fiscal 2003, the benefit obligation as of March 31, 2003, was approximately ¥4,311 million more than it would have been using the previous 2.8% discount rate. The effect of the changes had an immaterial impact on the net periodic costs.

Certain foreign subsidiaries have various funded pension plans, of which the plan assets and the projected benefit obligations are calculated under the provisions of SFAS No. 87. The aggregated fair value of plan assets as of March 31, 2003 and 2002, was approximately ¥11,455 million and ¥14,873 million, respectively, and the projected benefit obligations as of March 31, 2003 and 2002, were approximately ¥15,939 million and ¥16,015 million, respectively. Discount rates of 5.5% to 13.0% and expected long-term rates of return on plan assets of 5.5% to 10.0% were used as assumptions in determining the actuarial value of benefit obligations for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002.

Certain domestic subsidiaries also have unfunded severance payment plans and/or pension plans similar to those of the Company for their employees. The aggregated fair value of plan assets as of March 31, 2003 and 2002, was approximately ¥10,752 million and ¥10,614 million, respectively, and the projected benefit obligations as of March 31, 2003 and 2002, were approximately ¥24,227 million and ¥24,140 million, respectively. The amounts of net periodic costs of certain foreign and domestic subsidiaries for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002, were ¥3,886 million and ¥5,653 million, respectively.

Directors of the Company and domestic subsidiaries are primarily covered by unfunded retirement allowances plans. Under the unfunded plans described in the preceding paragraphs, the amounts required if all employees and directors had voluntarily terminated their employment at each balance-sheet date are fully accrued. The payments to directors are subject to shareholders' approval.

In November 2001, the Company announced a reorganization plan to reduce operating costs primarily through personnel reductions and relocation to affiliates. A voluntary early retirement and relocation to affiliates program was established to encourage reduction of personnel, primarily the Company's office personnel. Such program expired on February 28, 2002. In connection therewith, approximately 1,300 employees agreed to take early retirement and relocation to affiliates. During fiscal 2002, certain domestic subsidiaries also offered retirement incentive programs. As a result of these actions, the Company and certain subsidiaries charged the related cost of the early retirement program ¥23,712 million as special termination benefits in the consolidated statement of income for fiscal 2002. As of March 31, 2002, the remaining unpaid balance of accrued early termination benefits was ¥12,437 million, which was fully paid out in fiscal 2003. In connection with the early retirement program, the Company recorded a settlement loss of ¥6,419 million in accordance with SFAS No. 88 Employer's Accounting for Settlements and Curtailments of Defined Benefit Pension Plans and for Termination Benefits for the year ended March 31, 2002 which is also included in special termination benefit.

Total expenses of all severance payment and pension plan premiums charged to income for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002 were ¥13,274 million and ¥42,779 million respectively, and included the additional severance payment under the retirement incentive programs in 2002.

Certain foreign subsidiaries have postretirement benefit plans other than pensions, which are primarily not funded. The accumulated postretirement benefit obligation at March 31, 2003 and 2002, was ¥11,773 million and ¥8,880 million, respectively, and the accrued postretirement benefit obligation at March 31, 2003 and 2002, was ¥4,291 million and ¥4,375 million, respectively. The amounts of net periodic postretirement benefits other than pensions for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002 were not material.

The Company operates a stock option plan under which directors and certain employees have the right to purchase treasury shares at a predetermined price. The purchase price is set to equal an amount obtained by multiplying by 1.05 an average of the closing prices applicable to ordinary transactions of shares of the Company on the Tokyo Stock Exchange on all trading days for a month immediately preceding the month in which the date of grant of the stock option right falls, provided that the purchase price shall be equal to or exceeding the closing price of the Company share on the Tokyo Stock Exchange at the date of the grant.

On June 27, 2001, the shareholders authorized the acquisition of 1,100,000 shares of the Company's common stock for a total consideration not exceeding ¥1,000 million during the period up to the close of the following general meeting of shareholders in June 2002. On June 26, 2002, the shareholders authorized the acquisition of 1,000,000 shares of the Company's common stock for a total consideration not exceeding ¥5,000 million during the period up to close of the following general meeting of shareholders in June 2003.

The share purchase rights under the stock option plan became effective on each of the grant dates, and beneficiaries will be or were allowed to exercise their rights on August 1, 2003 and 2002.

The company uses the intrinsic value measurement prescribed by APB Opinion No.25 to account for stock options and no additional compensation cost was recorded as purchase prices were at least equal to the market price at the date of grant of rights in the years ended March 30, 2003 and 2002.

The following table summarizes information about purchases under the stock option plan for fiscal 2003 and 2002:

The net change in the total valuation allowance for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002, was a decrease of ¥653 million and an increase of ¥27,871 million, respectively.

In assessing the realizability of deferred tax assets, management considers whether it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. The ultimate realization of deferred tax assets is dependent upon the generation of future taxable income during the periods in which those temporary differences become deductible. Management considers the scheduled reversal of deferred tax liabilities, projected future taxable income, and tax planning strategies in making this assessment. Based upon the level of historical taxable income and projections for future taxable income over the periods which the deferred tax assets are deductible, management believes it is more likely than not the companies will realize the benefits of these deductible differences, net of the existing valuation allowances at March 31, 2003. The amount of the deferred tax asset considered realizable, however, could be reduced in the near term if estimates of future taxable income during the carryforward period are reduced.

The Company and its domestic subsidiaries are subject to a National Corporate tax rate of 30%, an inhabitant tax of approximately 6% and a deductible Enterprise tax of approximately 10%, which in the aggregate resulted in a combined statutory income tax rate of approximately 41.7%. The inhabitant tax rate and Enterprise tax rate vary by local jurisdiction. In March 2003, Japanese government approved the Amendments to Local Tax Law, which reduce standard business tax rates as well as additionally levying business tax based on corporate size. It will be effective for the year beginning on and after April 1, 2004. Consequently, combined statutory tax rate will be lowered to approximately 40.5% effective for deferred tax assets and liabilities expected to be settled or realized commencing April 1, 2004 and the effect of the tax rate change of ¥277 million was charged to income taxes.

Table of Contents

The differences between the combined statutory tax rates and the effective tax rates for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002, are summarized as follows:

Foreign subsidiaries are subject to income taxes of the countries in which they operate. At March 31, 2003, no deferred tax liabilities were recognized for undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries aggregating ¥58,223 million, because the Company currently does not expect those earnings to be distributed. The amount of unrecognized deferred tax liability associated with undistributed earnings was approximately ¥5,808 million. At March 31, 2003, the Company and certain subsidiaries had operating loss carryforwards aggregating approximately ¥124,304 million, which may be used as a deduction in determining taxable income in future periods. The period available to offset future taxable income varies in each tax jurisdiction as follows:

Year ending March 31	Millions of yen

Rent expenses under operating leases amounted to ¥12,944 million and ¥16,915 million, respectively, for the years ended March 31, 2003 and 2002. 17. Commitments and Contingent Liabilities

Edgar Filing: KOMATSU LTD - Form 6-K

At March 31, 2003, the companies were contingently liable for discounted and transferred receivables on a recourse basis with the financial institutions of ¥16,975 million (Note 3) and also as guarantors of indebtedness of others, including letters of awareness and keep-well agreements aggregating ¥21,500 million, including ¥3,117 million relating to affiliated companies. With regard to sale of a subsidiary, the Company guarantees to the purchaser to pay up to ¥4,258 million as of March 31, 2003 relating to the credit risk of subsidiary's outstanding receivables at the time of the sale. Management of the Company believes that losses from those contingent liabilities, if any, would not have a material effect on the consolidated financial statements.

Commitments for capital expenditures outstanding at March 31, 2003, aggregated approximately ¥5,600 million.

The companies are involved in certain legal actions and claims arising in the ordinary course of their business. It is the opinion of management and legal counsel that such litigation and claims will be resolved without material effect on the companies' financial position.

The companies have business activities with customers, dealers and associates around the world and their trade receivables from such parties are well diversified to minimize concentrations of credit risks. Management does not anticipate incurring losses on their trade receivables in excess of established allowances.

The companies also issue contractual product warranties under which they generally guarantee the performance of products delivered and services rendered for a certain period or term. Change in accrued product warranty cost for the year ended March 31, 2003 is summarized as follows:

	Millions of yen
Balance at beginning of year	¥11,193

Other	(208)
Balance at end of year	¥11,794

18. Derivative Financial Instruments

Risk Management Policy

The companies are exposed to market risk primarily from changes in foreign currency exchange rates and interest rates with respect to debt obligations, international operations and foreign currency denominated credits and debts. In order to manage these risks that arise in the normal course of business, the companies enter into various derivative transactions for hedging pursuant to their policies and procedures. The companies do not enter into derivative financial transactions for trading or speculative purposes.

The companies have entered into interest rate swap and cap agreements, partly concurrent with currency swap agreements for the purpose of managing the risk resulting from changes in cash flow or fair value that arise in their interest rate and foreign currency exposure with respect to certain short-term and long-term debts and investment securities.

The companies operate internationally which expose the companies to the foreign exchange risk against existing assets and liabilities and transactions denominated in foreign currencies (principally the U.S. dollar and the Euro). In order to reduce these risks, the companies execute forward exchange contracts and option contracts based on their projected cash flow in foreign currencies.

The companies are exposed to credit-related losses in the event of nonperformance by counterparties to derivative financial instruments, but they do not expect any counterparties to fail to meet their obligations because of the high credit rating of the counterparties.

Fair Value Hedges

The companies use derivative financial instruments designated as fair value hedges to manage primarily interest rate and foreign exchange risks associated with debt obligations. Principally cross-currency swap, interest rate swap and foreign exchange contracts are used to hedge such risk for debt obligations. Changes in fair value of the hedged debt obligations and derivative instruments designated as fair value hedge are offset and recognized in other expense. For the year ended March 31, 2003, hedge ineffectiveness resulting from fair value hedging activities was not material to the companies' result of operations. During the same period, no fair value hedges were discontinued.

Cash Flow Hedges

The companies use derivative financial instruments designated as cash flow hedges to manage the companies' foreign exchange risks associated with forecasted transactions and the companies' interest risks associated with debt obligations. For transactions denominated in foreign currencies, the companies typically hedge forecasted and firm commitment exposures to the variability in cash flow basically up to one year. For the variable rate debt obligations, the companies enter into interest rate swap contracts to manage the changes in cash flows. The companies record the changes in fair value of derivative instruments designated as cash flow hedges in other comprehensive income (loss). These amounts are reclassified into earnings through interest and other income or expense when the hedged items impact earnings. Approximately ¥549 million of existing loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) at March 31, 2003 will be reclassified into earnings within twelve months from that date. No cash flow hedges were discontinued during the year ended March 31, 2003 as a result of anticipated transactions that are no longer probable of occurring.

Undesignated Derivative Instruments

The companies have entered into interest rate swap contracts not designated as hedging instruments under SFAS No. 133 as a means of managing the Company and its group companies' interest rate exposures for short-term and long-term debts. Forward contracts and option contracts not designated as hedging instruments under SFAS No. 133 are also used to hedge certain foreign currency exposures. The changes in fair value of such instruments are recognized currently in earnings.

Notional principal amounts of derivative financial instruments outstanding at March 31, 2003 and 2002 are as follows:

Table of Contents19. The Fair Value of Financial Instruments*(1) *Cash and Cash Equivalents, Time Deposits, Trade Notes and Accounts Receivables, Other Current Assets, Short-Term Debt, Trade Notes and Accounts Payables, and Other Current Liabilities

The carrying amount approximates fair value because of the short maturity of these instruments.

(2) Investment Securities

The fair values of investment securities available for sale are based on quoted market prices.

(3) Installment Receivables

The fair values of installment receivables are based on the present value of future cash flows through maturity, discounted using estimated current interest rates. The fair values computed on such a basis approximate the carrying amounts (Note 3).

(4) Long-Term Debt

The fair values of each of the long-term debts are based on the quoted price in the most active market or the present value of future cash flows associated with each instrument discounted using the current borrowing rate for similar debt of comparable maturity.

(5) Derivative Financial Instruments

The fair values of derivative financial instruments, consisting principally of foreign currency contracts and interest swap agreements, are estimated by obtaining quotes from brokers.

The carrying amounts and the estimated fair values of the financial instruments, including financial instruments not qualifying as hedge, as of March 31, 2003 and 2002, are summarized as follows:

20. Business Segment Information

Under SFAS No. 131, Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information, operating segments are defined as components of an enterprise about which separate financial information is available that is evaluated regularly by the chief operating decision maker, in deciding how to allocate resources and in assessing performance. The operating segments are managed separately because each operating segment represents a strategic business unit that offers different products and services.

The companies operate on a worldwide basis principally with three operating segments: 1) Construction and mining equipment, 2) Electronics, 3) Others.
