FACTORY POINT NATIONAL BANK

Q & A Guide for Customers

What does this announcement mean?

The announcement means that Factory Point National Bank will be merged into Berkshire Bank, one of Massachusetts oldest and largest independent banks, and the largest banking institution in Western Massachusetts. Berkshire is headquartered in Pittsfield, Massachusetts. In addition to traditional banking services, Berkshire Bank and its affiliates also provide access to a full range of insurance, investment and asset management/trust services.

Why now?

This will allow us to provide expanded services to our customers and increase the range of financial options available to them. Future growth requires a level of investment that would be challenging to sustain on our own.

Why Berkshire?

Berkshire Bank holds the same values as Factory Point National Bank. We share a strong commitment to excellent service to customers and clients. Berkshire Bank knows customers like to bank where it is familiar, where they know the people and where decisions are made locally. Berkshire is an alternative to larger banks and is able to provide more resources while still offering intimate customer service. We can feel good about this partnership with Berkshire Bank.

When is the merger complete?

There are many activities that must occur prior to the final combination of the two banks, including approvals from regulators and shareholders. There will also be many other operational issues to address over the coming months. Given those necessary steps, we expect the transaction to be finalized some time during the 3rd or 4th quarter of 2007.

What happens in the meantime?

We will continue to operate in the best possible manner for our employees, customers and shareholders. We must remain focused on delivering the excellent service that our customers have come to expect from us.

Members of the Factory Point management team will also begin working with our counterparts at Berkshire Bank to prepare for the integration of systems and operations.

What does this mean to customers?

For our customers, banking at Factory Point National Bank will remain the same. Although our name will change, like Factory Point, Berkshire Bank is very focused on customers. We share a commitment to providing what is important to customers including our excellent service. And in the future, our customers will be able to take advantage of additional services.

In all likelihood, customers will have questions about this announcement. Our first priority is to assure them that our way of doing business isn't going to change.

Will any branches close?

It is Berkshire's intent that all Factory Point offices will remain open.

Where can I find additional information?
