Item 7.01 Regulation FD Disclosure.

On February 8, 2010, Corinthian Colleges, Inc. (the Company) received draft Cohort Default Rates from the federal Department of Education (ED) for students of the Company's institutions who entered repayment during the federal fiscal year ending September 30, 2008 (the 2008 Cohort). Under the Higher Education Act, an institution can lose its eligibility to participate in some or all of the federal student financial aid programs if defaults by its former students on their federally guaranteed student loans equal or exceed 25% per year for three consecutive years, or 40% for a single year. The term institution means a main campus and its additional locations, as defined by ED's regulations.

ED generally publishes draft cohort default rates in February of each year for the repayment period ending the previous September 30. Draft rates do not result in sanctions and can change between February and the release of the official cohort default rates in September.

In our Report on Form 10Q for the quarter ended September 30, 2009, we stated our belief that, given the data the Company had received at that time, we expected ten to twelve of our institutions to exceed the 25% limitation for the 2008 Cohort. In that same report, we also stated that preliminary data indicated another five of our institutions could exceed this limitation. On February 8, 2010, ED informed us that, out of our total 49 institutions (including recently acquired Heald College's institutions), nine had Cohort Default Rates for the 2008 Cohort that exceeded 25%. We do not expect any of these institutions to exceed the threshold for three consecutive years. No institution had a Cohort Default Rate that exceeded 40% for the 2008 Cohort.

The Company has implemented a multi-faceted cohort default management program and expects to remain in compliance with the cohort default rules. Our default management program includes: a new contact management system to assist in reaching students who are no longer in school; an internal department focused primarily on early stage delinquencies; an expanded program of entrance and exit counseling and financial literacy training for current students; and the use of outside firms to help reach and inform borrowers about alternatives to default, including income-based repayment, forbearance and deferral.

The following table sets forth the draft Cohort Default Rates for our institutions (including Heald College's institutions and their additional locations) included within total operations of the Company as of February 8, 2010 for the 2008 Cohort:

Certain statements in this Report on Form 8-K may be deemed to be forward-looking statements under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. The Company intends that all such statements be subject to the safe-harbor provisions of that Act. Such statements include, but are not limited to, those pertaining to the Company's expectation that its institutions will be able to comply with the limitations on cohort default rates. Many factors may cause the Company's actual results to differ materially from those discussed in any such forward-looking statements, including risks associated with the uncertain effectiveness of the Company's default prevention efforts; possible changes in general macroeconomic and market conditions (including unemployment); and other risks and uncertainties described in the Company's filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. If any of the Company's institutions, depending on its size, were to lose eligibility to participate in federal student financial aid programs because of high student cohort default rates, it could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business. The historical results achieved are not necessarily indicative of future prospects. The Company undertakes no obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.
