I am writing to update you on some recent events, and to thank you again for your continued hard work and dedication to Airgas.

Airgas Filing of Preliminary Proxy

Today we filed a preliminary proxy statement with the Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC) in connection with our 2010 Annual Meeting of Stockholders. In advance of our Annual Meeting, which we expect to hold on or before September 17, we will ask Airgas stockholders to re-elect three highly-qualified and experienced directors and to vote against Air Products nominees and by-law amendment proposals.

In addition to me, the two other directors up for re-election are:

W. Thacher Brown, who has been an Airgas director since 1989 and is one of Airgas longest-serving directors. He brings to the Board his many years of experience as a chief executive officer, investment professional and public company director and committee member; and Richard C. Ill, who has been an Airgas director since 2004 and has over 45 years of public company experience in management, manufacturing and operations.

The directors on our Board have an in-depth understanding of our company and the industrial gas industry, and they have always acted and will continue to act in the best interests of all Airgas stockholders. Despite Air Products self serving claims to the contrary, the Airgas Board is keenly aware of its duties and has created tremendous value for Airgas stockholders.

In fact, under the leadership of this Board, Airgas has delivered a total shareholder return of 85% over the past five years, and a return of 4,201% since the Company's IPO in 1986, more than seven times the return of the S&P 500 Index. That places Airgas above 94% of all companies in the S&P 500 Index in shareholder return since IPO.

In addition, since fiscal 2001, the Airgas Board has overseen:

More than 90 acquisitions;

Footprint expansion from 700 locations to 1,100;

A doubling of our cylinder population to 10+ million;
Growth of our ASU production network from 2 to 16 plants;

An excellent track record of double-digit growth in revenue, EBITDA¹, and earnings per share (EPS); and

A 20% compound annual growth rate for adjusted cash flow from operations.²

As evidenced by Airgas' successful strategy and proven track record of value creation, as well as the Board's significant ownership of Airgas stock, your Board is deeply committed to protecting and advancing the best interests of all Airgas stockholders.

¹ EBITDA is defined as Earnings Before Interest, Taxes, Depreciation and Amortization.

² Reconciliation of adjusted cash from operations is available on the airgas.com website - Investor Info/GAAP Reconciliation.

Air Products Filing of its Preliminary Proxy

As you may know, last week Air Products filed its own preliminary proxy materials. Air Products has nominated three individuals to stand for election to the Airgas Board of Directors and has put forth three shareholder proposals.

We believe Air Products' interests are diametrically opposed to those of Airgas stockholders. If elected, Air Products' nominees, who have been selected and paid by Air Products, could hold views that are colored by their relationship with Air Products, and work to advance Air Products' interests at the expense of the other Airgas stockholders. In stark contrast to the members of the Airgas Board of Directors, Air Products has no duty to act in the best interests of Airgas' stockholders. Further, the Air Products nominees lack relevant industry experience.

Given the grossly inadequate value offered by Air Products, the Airgas Board has repeatedly determined that discussions with Air Products are not warranted and that the continued execution of Airgas' strategic plan is in the best interests of the Company and its stockholders. Similarly, the Airgas Board unanimously recommends that stockholders disregard Air Products' nominees and vote for Airgas' highly-qualified and experienced directors.

What You Can Expect Until the Annual Meeting

In order to advance its hostile offer, we expect that Air Products will conduct a very public proxy contest in an attempt to get its nominees elected and by-law amendments passed. It is not uncommon for companies pursuing a hostile offer to make personal attacks and to attempt to characterize historical performance in the least favorable light. Regardless of what tactics are ultimately employed, let us stay true to our values and remain focused on what is most important—continuing to serve our customers and create value for our stockholders.

Soon, both Airgas and Air Products will begin soliciting votes from stockholders through proxies. A proxy is written authorization given by a stockholder that allows someone else, such as the company's management or another stockholder, to cast his/her vote at a stockholder meeting. In this situation, both Airgas and Air Products will provide stockholders with individual, separate proxy cards, each with its own color. Airgas will be using the WHITE proxy card to solicit votes in support of the incumbent directors.

As the Annual Meeting approaches, we will be filing additional materials regarding Airgas' historical and anticipated future performance and will continue to meet and speak with stockholders to discuss the Air Products offer, its nominees and proposals. We will also be communicating with our stockholders and other interested parties through press releases, letters and presentations, and, as such, you are likely to see an increasing number of headlines and articles regarding Airgas. Those of you who are stockholders will also receive materials in the mail.

As always it is important for Airgas to speak with one voice. Should you receive any media inquiries, please forward them to Jay Worley, Vice President—Communications and Investor Relations, at 610-902-6206 or jay.worley@airgas.com. All investor inquiries should go to Barry Strzelec, Manager—Investor Relations, at 610-902-6256 or barry.strzelec@airgas.com.

We will continue to provide updates as this process moves forward. I've mentioned before that the current situation shines a spotlight on Airgas, highlighting our many accomplishments and our attractive future. It is a clear reflection of the energy, motivation, and teamwork that you demonstrate every day. Let's stay focused on running our business so that we can continue achieving our objectives and building on our extraordinary track record of success.

Thank you again for your commitment to Airgas.

Sincerely,

Peter McCausland

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
