PART III NARRATIVE

State below in reasonable detail why Forms 10-K, 20-F, 11-K, 10-Q, 10-D, N-SAR, N-CSR, or the transition report or portion thereof, could not be filed within the prescribed time period.

Tesla Motors, Inc. was unable to timely file its Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2012 because a probable error in the presentation of certain non-cash items relating to capital expenditures on its consolidated statements of cash flows was identified during the final review of the Form 10-K. As a result, Tesla could not complete its financial closing process prior to March 1, 2013.

It is important to note that this will have no impact on previously reported total cash and cash equivalents, consolidated income statements, consolidated balance sheets, or free cash flows (defined as cash flow from operations less capital expenditures), including those reported in our earnings release on February 20, 2013.

Tesla believes that some unpaid capital expenditures in 2011 and 2012 would be more accurately classified as operating activities, rather than investing activities. Although the review is continuing, the consolidated statements of cash flows will likely be revised for the year ended December 31, 2011 by reducing cash flows used in investing activities with a corresponding increase in cash flows used in operating activities. A similar adjustment will be made to the statement of cash flows for the year ended December 31, 2012. These adjustments affect the quarters and full years ended December 31, 2012 and 2011, and could include a reclassification of approximately $31 million and $15 million from cash flows used in investing activities to cash flows used in operating activities for the years ended December 31, 2012 and 2011, respectively.

Tesla currently anticipates that the Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2012 will be filed as soon as practicable and no later than Monday, March 11, 2013.
