Material United States Federal Income Tax Consequences

We intend to take the position that, solely for purposes of determining whether the notes are issued with original issue discount, we are deemed to exercise our option to redeem the notes on May 26, 2020, and that, as a result, (i) interest paid on the notes through May 26, 2020 will be taxable to a U.S. Holder as ordinary interest income at the time it accrues or is received in accordance with the U.S. Holder's normal method of accounting for tax purposes, and (ii) interest payable on the notes outstanding after May 26, 2020 will be taxable to a U.S. Holder as ordinary interest income at the time it accrues, in accordance with a constant yield method based on a compounding of interest, without regard to the timing of the receipt of cash payments attributable to this income. See United States Federal Taxation U.S. Holders Discount Notes Notes Subject to Early Redemption and United States Federal Taxation U.S. Holders Discount Notes General in the prospectus supplement.

Notes not redeemed on May 26, 2020 will be deemed to be reissued with original issue discount on such date, and a U.S. Holder of such note will be subject to tax on accrued interest prior to the receipt of interest payments. Prospective purchasers are urged to consult their own tax advisors regarding the federal, state, local and other tax consequences to them of an investment in the notes.
