DOCOMO to Terminate mova and DoPa 2G Services

TOKYO, JAPAN, January 30, 2009 NTT DOCOMO, INC. announced today it will discontinue its 2G mova service (including car phone and Pre-Call prepaid services), which began in March 1993, as well as its 2G DoPa packet communication service, which began in March 1997, at the end of March 2012. Associated services and related billing plans will also be terminated at the same time.

DOCOMO will contact mova and DoPa customers directly via postal mail, mobile mail and docomo shops to inform them of the discontinuations and to introduce alternative FOMA 3G services.

For mova customers who wish to shift to FOMA, the company has launched a campaign offering discounts on the cost of purchasing a 3G handset and the waiving of any related administrative fees. DoPa Single customers making the transition to FOMA will receive cash back and will not be charged any administrative fees.

As DOCOMO 2G customers shift to FOMA 3G services, the company will remain committed to providing them with the very best mobile service, safety and security.
