This is an important update relating to your investment in the GE Interest Plus Notes. Based on our review of the final rules relating to the Temporary Liquidity Guarantee Program (TLGP) of the U.S. Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (or FDIC), our understanding is that GE Interest Plus Notes are not guaranteed under the TLGP. On November 13, 2008, GE Capital Corporation became eligible for a FDIC guarantee of its senior unsecured debt under the TLGP. Pursuant to the FDIC's Interim Rule issued October 23, 2008 governing the TLGP, GE Interest Plus Notes were covered by the FDIC guarantee. In our disclosure relating to the TLGP, we described this coverage and indicated that the FDIC guarantee might be subject to further rulemaking that could adversely affect the application of the guarantee to your investment. On November 21, 2008, the FDIC released revised rules for the TGLP. These new rules changed the types of senior unsecured debt securities that are guaranteed by the FDIC under the TLGP. As a result, our understanding is that GE Interest Plus Notes are not guaranteed under the FDIC's TLGP. The information we are presenting to you is based on our understanding of the FDIC's current rules for the TLGP. While the revised rules are stated to be final, it remains possible that further rulemaking may occur and that interpretive decisions may be made with respect to the TLGP that could alter some or all of the information contained in this notice. Further information with respect to the TLGP and its application is available at: www.fdic.gov/regulations/resources/tlgp/index.html. Corporate Notes for Your Business What are corporate notes? Some large corporations offer direct investment in their company's senior, unsecured debt through corporate note programs. INVEST NOW About AAA Ratings Standard and Poor's awards a AAA rating to companies they define as "the best quality companies, reliable and stable." Moody's assigns their Aaa rating to companies they judge "to be of the highest quality, with minimal credit risk." 888-674-4138 Representatives are available Monday to Friday 8:30am to 7:00 p.m. ET By issuing corporate notes, companies like General Electric Capital Corporation (GE Capital) can borrow capital directly from investors at a fairly low cost, while providing investor benefits such as: Higher rates of interest than other cash alternatives like FDIC-insured savings accounts, short-term CDs, and money market mutual funds Investments that are fully redeemable at any time Convenient banking-type features like free electronic transfers between linked checking accounts, ability to wire funds and 24-7 access via internet and automated telephone service. Corporate notes are a direct, unsecured investment in the debt of a corporation, and so are not FDIC insured. Unlike short-term bond funds or money market mutual funds, they are not diversified pools of investments. Because they are a form of unsecured credit, your business would be treated as an unsecured creditor in the event of a default. That's why it is critical for you to evaluate the financial strength of the company you choose to invest in. The Strength of GE Interest Plus Corporate Notes GE Interest Plus for Businesses is. a direct investment in GE Capital. GE Capital is rated AAA by Standard and Poor's Corporation (S&P) and Aaa by Moody's Investors Service (Moody's). S&P and Moody's are nationally recognized statistical rating organizations, each approved by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission to measure the safety of securities. By reviewing the credit rating, you can determine if you are investing in a company that is financially sound. Learn more about GE Capital.
